New Titles Catalogue

Autumn/Winter 2025

Welcome

Welcome to the Autumn/Winter 2025 catalogue from Bristol University Press and Policy Press.

This season our outstanding range of new titles includes Liberation and Corruption by Lord Peter Hain (page 4), which explores why freedom movements often succumb to bad governance and corruption once in power.

Terri Givens's new book Reckoning focuses on the meaningful anti-racist change that has and can be achieved with the radical empathy approach (page 5).

We also have three new titles in our What Is It For? series: What Are Nuclear Weapons For?, What Is Drug Policy For? and What Is Truth For? (pages 6 & 7).

In 2024, we launched our exciting new collection of professional business books, aiming to inspire business minds with innovative ideas for a better business world.

In Nature's Boardroom, Simeon Rose, Brand Director at Faith In Nature, tells the story of the first company to appoint Nature to its board of directors (page 13).

Featuring essential reading from industry experts, this collection reveals transformative ideas that drive progress, foster leadership and meaningful impact in business.

Read on for news of our all our new titles and where you can find them on our platform Bristol University Press Digital (bristoluniversitypressdigital.com).

Liberation and Corruption

Why Freedom Movements Fail

Peter Hain, House of Lords

"As a student anti-apartheid campaigner long ago, I find this an uncomfortable but important book."

JON SNOW, BROADCASTER

Why are liberation and independence movements often betrayed when their leaders get into government? Peter Hain offers a gripping exploration of why newly independent states often succumb to bad governance and corruption once in power, using global examples ranging from Africa to Latin America, Russia, the Caribbean and Malaysia.

Mind the Inclusion Gap

How Allies Can Bridge the Divide Between Talking Diversity and Taking Action

Suzy Levy, The Red Plate

As the backlash against 'DEI' grows, the principles of fairness and dignity are being reframed as divisive. So how did we get here? And what can we do about it? This book is for anyone who wants to support equality. Inside are tools to build confidence and capability, as well as practical guidance to take meaningful action.

Reckoning

Creating Positive Change through Radical Empathy

Terri E. Givens, University of British Columbia

Following the Black Lives Matter protests, many promises were made to deal with the impact of structural discrimination. While this led to more talk than action, there has also been meaningful change, some of which has gone under the radar. This book, a follow-up to Terri Givens's bestselling book Radical Empathy, highlights the promises which were delivered. With real-world examples from prisons and policing to businesses, NGOs and universities, it focuses on those who have successfully taken action to create lasting change.

White Privilege

The Myth of a Post-Racial Society

Second edition

Kalwant Bhopal, University of Birmingham

How and why do those from Black and minority ethnic communities continue to be marginalised? Kalwant Bhopal explores how changing social, economic and political circumstances have increased, rather than decreased, racial discrimination in both the UK and USA since the Black Lives Matter movement. She examines how far-right governments have produced a discourse that race is no longer a problem and we now live in a post-racial society. Drawing on topical debates and supported by empirical data, this important book examines the impact of race on wider issues of inequality and difference in society.

What Are Nuclear Weapons For?

Patricia Shamai, University of Portsmouth

Patricia Shamai traces the history of nuclear weapons from their first use in 1945 through the Cold War to the ominous nuclear landscape today. She shows how they have been a deterrent by raising the stakes of war and thereby reducing the chances of conflict, but this depends on the world's reaction and ongoing vigilance.

What Is Drug Policy For?

Julia Buxton, Liverpool John Moores University

Julia Buxton looks at how our current drug control regime came about and charts the evolution of the contemporary drugs market, looking at where drugs are now produced and consumed, and by whom. Ultimately, she asks, if the current strategy is patently failing, how could it be better managed?

What Is Truth For?

N.J. Enfield, University of Sydney

This optimist's guide to truth contends that truth is the best device we have for coordinating collective decisions and actions, and the concept of truth is a target ideal towards which we should strive. If we do not, our decisions will be risky or even disastrous. This longstanding problem will not be solved with modern technology or regulations, but with mindfulness, humility, cooperation and optimism.

What Is Journalism For?

Jon Allsop, journalist

What is at stake when journalism is threatened? Does society still need journalists? As it faces global threats from AI, economic decline, disinformation and curbs on press freedom, it's more urgent than ever to ask what journalism is for.

Drawing on his experience as a journalist and media commentator, Jon Allsop examines key concepts that constitute journalism's role. He also considers whether they can be champions of democracy, and aspire to change the world.

Inside Thatcher's Monetarism Experiment

The Promise, the Failure, the Legacy

Tim Lankester, formerly Margaret Thatcher's first private secretary for economic affairs

"A quietly devastating inside account of the theory and practice of monetarism...A brilliant account."

FINANCIAL TIMES

In 1979, Margaret Thatcher's new government pursued a monetarist economic policy in response to double-digit inflation, rising unemployment and flatlining economic growth. Tim Lankester's insider's account offers fascinating insights into one of Britain's most unsuccessful economic episodes and also examines monetarism's legacy today.

Lessons in Diplomacy

Politics, Power and Parties

Leigh Turner, former British ambassador to Ukraine and Austria

"A thoughtful, entertaining and informative insight."

NEW EASTERN EUROPE

"Lives up to the promise of its title."

THE FOREIGN SERVICE JOURNAL

"Fantastic insights from one of the most effective diplomats I have ever met."

ANGUS ROBERTSON MSP

Leigh Turner is a former British ambassador who held posts in Ukraine, Turkey and Austria. In this witty globe-trotting adventure through one of the most intriguing careers a person can have, Leigh relates his interactions with royalty of both the aristocratic and celebrity kinds, and with brilliant and extraordinary people who bestowed valuable lessons. Offering astute reflections on Brexit, Russia's war with Ukraine and the chaos of modern politics, he sheds new light on the intricacies of modern statecraft, including what we all can learn from a good diplomat or ambassador.

In this entertaining and accessible first-hand account, you'll discover how diplomats really work with spies, how immunity allows killers to escape justice, how Russia broke up the Soviet Union and then nursed its resentment at the consequences - and how to throw, and be invited to, a great cocktail party.

Building a Green Wall

Irish America's Resurgence Post-Brexit

Kimberly Cowell-Meyers and Carolyn Gallaher, American University

In the aftermath of Britain's 2016 decision to leave the EU, the Irish-American ethnic lobby remobilised to defend the Belfast/Good Friday Agreement from the threats posed by Brexit.

Drawing on interviews in Washington, Belfast, Dublin and London, the authors in this book explore how the lobby shaped US policy towards Brexit in order to prevent the reimposition of a hard border on the island of Ireland and preserve peace. The authors also consider the lobby's approach to other contentious issues, including a united Ireland and Troubles-related investigations.

Nature's Boardroom

Giving Nature a Voice and a Vote

Simeon Rose, Faith In Nature and Nature on the Board

In 2022, Faith In Nature became the first company to appoint Nature to its board of directors, giving the natural world a voice and a vote in every decision and redefining the meaning of corporate responsibility. Nature's Boardroom offers a behind-the-scenes look at this groundbreaking initiative, outlining how businesses can embed 'Nature governance' into their organisations.

Simeon Rose, Brand Director at Faith In Nature and co-creator of Nature on the Board, shares the story of how this bold idea took shape, the challenges and insights gained, and why more companies should follow suit.

Offering simple, practical tools for businesses, sustainability professionals and entrepreneurs, this book is a call to action for rethinking the relationship between business and the natural world.

Under Investigation

Transforming Disciplinary Practice in the Workplace

Edited by Andrew Cooper and Adrian Neal, NHS Wales

While employee-relations investigations are an important part of organisational practice for managing workplace issues, there is growing evidence of the significant harm they can cause to individuals being taken through them. This harm can also spread further to those involved in their delivery, as well as impacting organisational culture and reputation, leading to financial and economic harm.

Under Investigation proposes a shift in mindset that prioritises employee wellbeing alongside the application of the process, reducing potential harm and creating healthier work environments. Based on a programme of work and research within NHS Wales, it explores the wider impact of employee investigations, considers new approaches to applying disciplinary policy and includes a call to the human resources profession for change.

City, Space and Trade Unionism

Beltrán Roca, Universidad de Cádiz

How does collective action shape economic landscapes? This book examines the transformation of the workers' movement in Spain's metal sector, one of the country's most unionised industries. Having faced restructuring, delocalization, subcontracting and increasing precarity, metalworkers in Cádiz have used radical methods to challenge measures that threaten their income and industry.

Adopting a spatial approach to labour and social movements, Beltrán Roca investigates the spatial strategies employed by unions to navigate these challenges, debating whether to focus on factory-bound action or engage the broader community. In doing so, the book highlights labour militancy as a social process deeply rooted in specific cities and places, and of workers as producers of space through conflict.

Diverse Voices in Family Law

Edited by Rajnaara C. Akhtar, University of Warwick

Highlighting experiences and voices historically overlooked, misunderstood or forgotten, this book answers the urgent need for a more diverse and inclusive curriculum in family law in England and Wales.

The book helps readers diversify their understanding of the law and its often-unequal impact on citizens, equipping students with the vital skills and knowledge they need to be lawyers in the real world. Sectioned into three parts, the book covers key areas of family law including adult relationships, children and family law and domestic abuse. Each chapter takes a critical legal approach to the development and application of the law, enriched by key issues from a range of perspectives to demonstrate the need to recognise diverse voices.

Written by a diverse team of expert contributors, the book also includes:

- Further reading lists;
- Helpful chapter summaries;
- End-of-chapter questions to spark discussion and reflection.

After over a decade of unprecedented cuts, this important book examines the radical transformation of legal advice funding and delivery in the UK. Using Liverpool as a case study, the authors analyse the impact of these changes on access to justice, social rights and health inequalities.

Queering UK Refugee Law

Alex Powell, Oxford Brookes University

In the context of a global backlash against migrant and LGBTIQ+ rights, this book examines the experiences of LGBTIQ+ people in the UK asylum system. By blending empirical data and critical theory, the text highlights the contradictions between the UK's purportedly LGBTIQ+ inclusive narratives and its treatment of sexually diverse refugees.

Reflections on Probation

A Companion Resource for Developing Practitioners

Edited by Jennifer Grant, Laura Haggar and Michelle McDermott, University of Portsmouth

Reflective practice is at the heart of probation training and the continuing professional development of practitioners. This edited collection provides practitioners with an opportunity to explore and develop their own reflective practice, considering diversity and organisational challenges, with real-world examples of reflection in the probation context.

In addition to probation specialists, its contributors include those from prison, third-sector organisations and mental health perspectives, to consider probation practice in different settings. Each chapter provides prompts for reflective development, so its ideas can be immediately applied in practice. It will equip the reader to develop their reflective practice skills, regardless of their level of experience.

Women, Relationships & Criminal Justice

The Personal and Professional

Edited by Sarah Waite and Natalie Rutter, Leeds Trinity University

Women who have been criminalised by the state typically encounter gendered experiences and challenges and are affected by complex and intersecting layers of system failure, marginalisation and stigma. Bringing together diverse perspectives from research, lived experience and frontline practice, this collection considers the central role of relationships for criminalised women, including motherhood, family, peer, romantic and professional relationships.

The collection offers critical insights into women's relationships with the often oppressive system which they are required to navigate. Through different forms of expression, the collection allows us to hear a range of voices that offer alternative visions for the present and future. It makes a powerful case for policies and practices that are more responsive to women's distinct needs within the criminal justice system.

A Criminology of Popular Music

Eleanor Peters, Edge Hill University

Music explores the deepest experiences of the human condition – love, violence, religion, hedonism, protest and politics. This book takes common themes in popular music and analyses them through a harms-based critical criminology of music, while staying focused on its aesthetic and sensory elements.

It analyses the sexism, homophobia and heteronormative bias of the music industry, considering its harms and dangers to the people working within it. It also examines the influences of drugs and alcohol – on both musicians and fans. Taking in music from across the globe, the book considers its role in bringing hope, whether on a personal or political level worldwide.

Welcoming Cities

How Newcomers Shape Urban Policy Making

Jacqueline Broadhead, University of Oxford

A truly welcoming and inclusive city is not just an aspiration – it is essential to the future of our increasingly diverse urban societies. Yet too often, policy and practice lack the theoretical and research foundations needed for meaningful and effective implementation.

This book bridges this gap, offering an interdisciplinary framework grounded in empirical research and case studies from 12 UK cities and international partners. Engaging with key governance challenges, it explores how cities define and implement welcoming policies across multiple sectors.

Moving beyond critique, this book provides a constructive, action-oriented approach to integration and social cohesion. It will be essential reading for UK policy makers, regional leaders and scholars from sociology and political science to migration studies and urban governance.

Generations of Feminism and Gender Studies in Europe

Edited by Elisabetta Ruspini, University of Milano-Bicocca and Ana Vidu, University of California, Berkeley

How did feminism shape the rise of gender studies in Europe? Using a generational lens, this book offers fresh insights and viewpoints on the ongoing discussion around the development and establishment of gender studies in Europe. With contributions from pioneering women scholars who built and sustained the European Sociological Association's Research Network 33, it provides an unprecedented history of how feminism and women's studies was the catalyst for a gender turn in academic thought.

Highlighting the interdisciplinary innovations feminism brought to the field, this is a vital exploration of the lasting impact of generations of scholars on European and global gender studies.

Life and Death in Latin American Cities

The Necropolis at Stake

Christien Klaufus, University of Amsterdam

The infrastructure of death is an undeniable part of urban life, yet it is often overlooked in the study of cities.

This book explores the intricate dynamics between the living and the dead in six Latin American cities: Bogotá, Medellín, Lima, Buenos Aires, Quetzaltenango and Cuenca. Drawing on more than a decade of ethnographic research, the author investigates how urban death infrastructures – such as cemeteries and spaces for the deceased – are shaped by rapid urbanisation, legacies of violence, neoliberal policies and alternative spiritual practices.

With a fresh Global South perspective, this unique contribution will challenge the boundaries of death studies, placing the infrastructure of death at the heart of urban life.

A History of Modern Britain in 12 Crises

Christopher Kirkland, York St. John University

This book provides an accessible and engaging introduction to British political history, by exploring 12 key crises from the early 20th century to the modern day. Taking each crisis in turn, chapters investigate the following crucial questions:

- What's at stake in the crisis?
- Who was able to frame and shape the debates and narratives around the crisis?
- How was the crisis eventually resolved?

Developing a nuanced account of crisis, the book shows how narrations of events as crises can be used to promote particular political changes. Taken together, the crises will familiarise readers with key themes in British politics and the events that have shaped the current shape of politics within the UK.

Critical Explorations of Crisis

Edited by Helle Rydstrom and Mo Hamza, Lund University, Thomas Gammeltoft-Hansen, University of Copenhagen and Vanja Berggren, Karolinska Institute

Bringing together a broad team of contributors, this book argues for a new interdisciplinary field of crisis studies. Covering a range of cases, the book critically explores the intersections of socioeconomic, political, climate and health factors to unravel the dynamic and transformative forces of crisis.

How is political change claimed and recognised? How is it attached to responsible actors and transferred between them?

This volume explores a mechanism that is celebrated in liberal discourse but is trickier in practice: the performance and uptake of examples.

Bodily Fluids, Fluid Bodies and International Politics

Feminist Technoscience,
Biopolitics and Security

Jenn Hobbs, University of Leicester

In recent years, security actors have become increasingly concerned with health issues. This book reveals how understandings of race, sexuality and gender are produced/reproduced through healthcare policy.

Analysing the plasma of paid Mexican/o donors in the US, airport vomit in Ebola epidemics and the semen of soldiers with genitourinary injuries, this book shows how security practices focus upon governing bodily fluids.

Using a variety of critical scholarship – feminist technoscience, queer studies and critical race studies – this book uses fluids to reveal unequal distributions of life and death.

This collection revisits the notion of reflexivity from a science and technology studies (STS) perspective, asking how researchers are affected by, and affect, the worlds they engage with. Using experimental formats that challenge academic convention, the volume acknowledges the ‘dark sides’ of reflexivity, while insisting that it is nonetheless worthwhile striving for it.

This volume is essential for anyone interested in creative, playful and always incomplete attempts to refresh reflexivity in research, and in developing more liveable worlds for ourselves and those our research engages with.

Understanding Digital Responsibilities

Lizzie Coles-Kemp, Royal Holloway, University of London and Mark Burdon, Queensland University of Technology

Available open access digitally under CC-BY-NC-ND licence.

This innovative book offers an original framework for understanding digital responsibility, blending insights from law, technology and policy. Through a series of case studies showcasing work from early career researchers, it highlights the diverse groups, values and governance challenges shaping digital environments across jurisdictions. From crafting effective policies to designing ethical digital products, this book equips policy makers, practitioners and academics with the tools to minimise harm and enhance accountability and responsibility in the digital age.

This is a vital resource for navigating the complexities of digital responsibility in a pluralistic, globalised world.

Navigating Societal Change Through Design

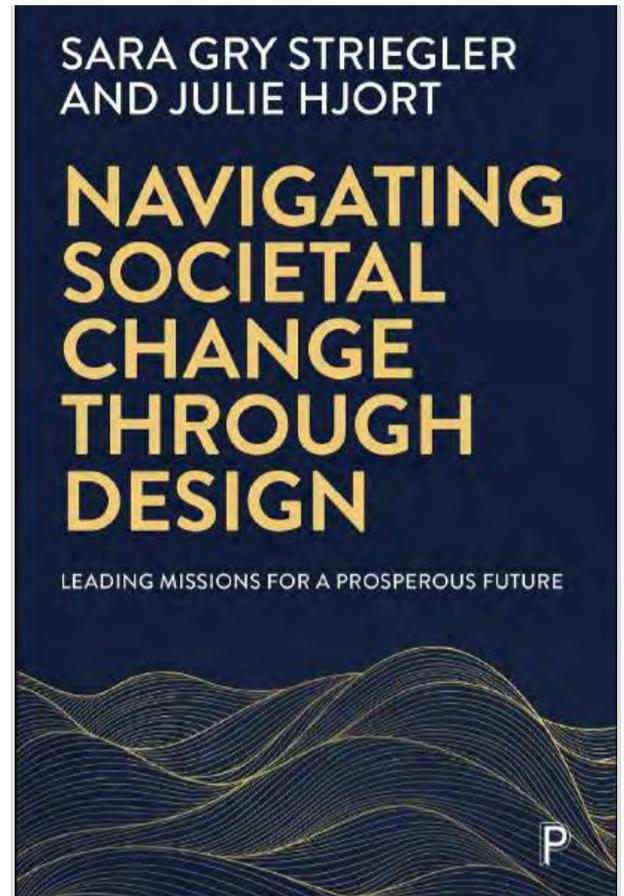

Leading Missions for a Prosperous Future

Sara Gry Striegler, Danish Design Center and
Julie Hjort, Nordic Health Lab

The social and environmental challenges we face today are complex and interdependent. Leaders and experts worldwide acknowledge that we cannot address them in isolation and that to keep doing so is to intensify the problem.

This book connects the dots between a group of diverse, but overlapping, professional domains: design, mission-oriented innovation, foresight and futures design, system innovation and leadership. The authors, leading thinkers within Nordic Health Lab and the Danish Design Center, mix methodology and theory with real-life case studies and compelling visual models to aid readers in navigating a new story, balancing tensions in timescale and mindset, learning through experiments and working collaboratively.

Aimed at policy makers, practitioners and educators, this book encourages a new and heightened awareness of systemic change that can lead to societal transformation in support of a sustainable future.

Civil Society Activism and Animal Welfare Rights

Paul Chaney, Cardiff University and Sarbeswar Sahoo, Indian Institute of Technology

Despite increasing legal recognition of animal rights, policy making remains inconsistent, and civil society's role in shaping governance is underexplored. Civil Society Activism and Animal Welfare Rights offers new empirical and theoretical insights into how advocacy groups influence animal welfare policy in the UK and India.

Applying extensive research and interviews with key animal welfare organisations, this book examines the challenges, progress and future prospects of civil society activism. It shows how animal rights and welfare have risen up the political agenda as parties have adapted to increasing public support.

This is a timely and in-depth analysis of the evolving landscape of animal rights and governance.

Making Child Protection Work

Harry Ferguson, University of Birmingham

Despite its high public profile, little is known about child protection work. Policy and bureaucracy often dominate conversations, but less attention is given to the crucial relationships which social workers build with children and families – relationships that ultimately determine the success of social care interventions.

This textbook offers an in-depth, research-based exploration of how social workers use the time they have with children and families to create meaningful change. Drawing on extensive ethnographic and observational research, it presents a new, forward-facing approach to understanding child protection.

The textbook features:

- A detailed examination of real-world child protection case studies;
- A new vocabulary for understanding and improving social work practice;
- Original integration of psychoanalytic and sociological perspectives;
- Practical tools for navigating challenges such as working with infants and managing hostile relationships.

Sure to become a crucial text in social work study, this book reimagines child protection practice, offering novel theoretical and practical perspectives on what 'good enough care' is.

Using Documents in Research

When, Where, Why and How

Edited by Aimee Grant, Swansea University and Helen Kara, We Research It Ltd.

Documents are a rich yet often overlooked source of research data, offering unique insights across disciplines. This book provides a clear and practical guide to working with a wide variety of documents – from everyday records and identity papers to social media and music archives. Featuring contributions from leading international scholars, it unpacks the decisions researchers make when selecting, analysing and interpreting documentary sources.

Organised into four sections, the book examines how researchers engage with seemingly mundane materials, explore documents in popular culture, apply multi-modal research techniques and develop innovative approaches to dissemination. Each chapter offers real-world case studies, illustrating diverse research questions, theoretical perspectives and analytical methods.

Key features include:

- Step-by-step guidance on applying document analysis in research;
- Diverse case studies showcasing practical applications across fields;
- Engaging and accessible explanations that clarify complex methodologies.

Filling a crucial gap in the methods literature, this essential text equips students and researchers with the tools to harness the full potential of documentary sources.

How to Succeed at Collaborative Research

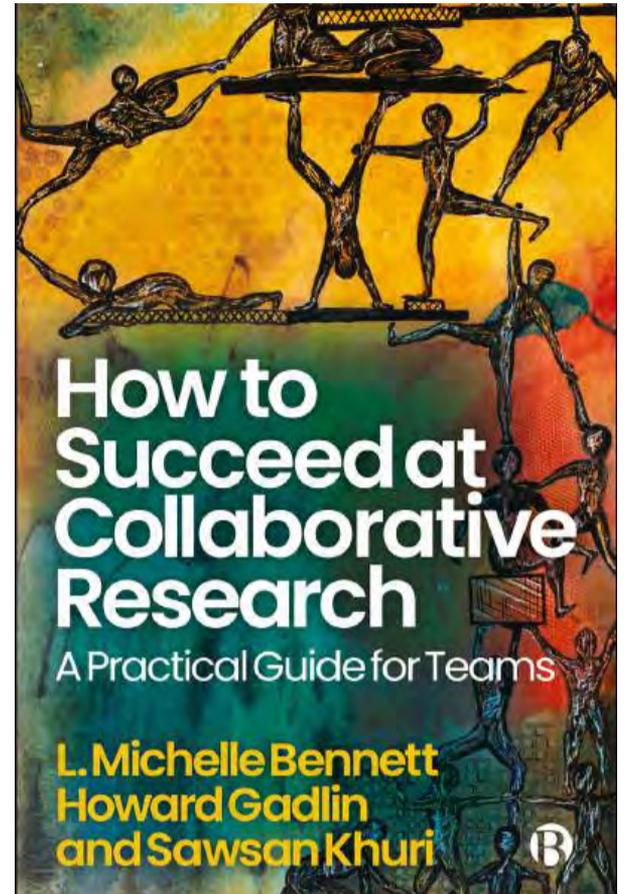

A Practical Guide for Teams

L. Michelle Bennett, L.M. Bennett Consulting LLC,
Howard Gadlin, Ombudsman to Harvard Medical School and
Sawsan Khuri, University of Exeter

Today's complex research challenges demand effective teams, yet researchers rarely receive training in teamwork skills crucial for collaborative success.

This book fills that gap, outlining theory and providing practical actions that equip researchers with tools to build and sustain effective teams. Drawing on organisational psychology, team science and the authors' own experience, it offers concrete practices for fostering collaborative innovation, managing diverse perspectives and achieving high-impact outcomes.

An essential reading for researchers, administrators and facilitators seeking to build high-performing teams, this indispensable resource enables researchers to effectively work across different disciplines and sectors to meet the evolving demands of funded research.

Purposeful Evaluation

A Practical Guide to Design, Development and Delivery

David Parsons, Leeds Beckett University

This book offers a practical guide for those transitioning from research to systematic evaluation.

With growing demand for reliable evaluation across government, charities and other institutions, many new evaluators lack necessary knowledge and skills. This book addresses those gaps, offering step-by-step guidance on designing and delivering fit-for-purpose evaluations to maximise their use and utility. Taking a holistic approach to the evaluation journey, it covers key challenges such as engaging stakeholders, managing expectations and handling resource pressures.

With real-world case studies and practical tools, this is an essential resource for practitioners across public, academic and voluntary sectors.

Researching and Writing Differently

Ilaria Boncori, University of Essex

"Personal, political, sensitive, provocative and honest. An inspiring read!"

EMMANOUELA MANDALAKI, NEOMA BUSINESS SCHOOL

In a neoliberal academia dominated by masculine ideals of measurement and performance, it is becoming more important than ever to develop alternative ways of researching and writing.

This powerful new book gives voice to non-conforming narratives, suggesting innovative, messy and nuanced ways of organising the reading and writing of scholarship in management and organisation studies. In doing so, it spotlights how different methods and approaches can represent voices of inequality and reveal previously silenced topics.

Informed by feminist and critical perspectives, this will be an invaluable resource for current and future scholars in management and organisation studies and other social sciences.

eBooks

All our books are available as ePUBs and ePDFs through a wide range of eBook providers.

Library customers can purchase our eBooks from a range of digital platforms and library aggregators, including JSTOR, EBSCO, ProQuest, IG Publishing and CNEIPC.

Our digital monograph collections are available through Policy Press Scholarship Online (PPSO) in partnership with Oxford University Press, Cambridge Core and Project Muse.

Our etextbooks are available to buy through Kortext, VitalSource and Perlego. Individual eBooks are also available from online bookshops including Amazon Kindle, Google Play, Kobo and eBooks.com.

We use the Glassboxx service from Firsty Group for delivery of our eBooks and audiobooks. Glassboxx is available on iOS and Android phones and tablets, and Windows and macOS computers. For more information on Glassboxx, please see the help page: glassboxx.com/reader-help
